FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

General Counsel's Opinion No. 12, Engaged in the Business of Receiving Deposits Other Than Trust Funds

AGENCY: Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC).

ACTION: Notice of General Counsel's Opinion No. 12.

SUMMARY: Section 5 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act provides that an applicant for deposit insurance must be "engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds." The statute has included this phrase since 1950. During the past half century the FDIC has construed the phrase so as to accommodate the evolving nature of banking. The phrase has been interpreted on a case-by-case basis to encompass non-traditional banks that do not accept unlimited non-trust deposits from the general public.

This long-standing interpretation is confirmed in this General Counsel's opinion. As set out in this opinion, the statutory requirement of being "engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds" is satisfied by the continuous maintenance of one or more non-trust deposits in the aggregate amount of $500,000.

Text of General Counsel's Opinion

By William F. Kroener, III, General Counsel

Introduction

The FDIC is authorized to approve or disapprove applications for federal deposit insurance. See 12 U.S.C. 1815. In determining whether to approve deposit insurance applications, the FDIC considers the seven factors set forth in the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (FDI Act). These factors are (1) the financial history and condition of the depository institution; (2) the adequacy of the institution's capital structure; (3) the future earnings prospects of the institution; (4) the general character and fitness of the management of the institution; (5) the risk presented by the institution to the Bank Insurance Fund or the Savings Association Insurance Fund; (6) the convenience and needs of the community to be served by the institution; and (7) whether the institution's corporate powers are consistent with the purposes of the FDI Act. 12 U.S.C. 1816. Also, the FDIC must determine as a threshold matter that an applicant is a "depository institution which is engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds * * *," 12 U.S.C. 1815(a)(1). Applicants that do not satisfy this threshold requirement are ineligible for deposit insurance.

The FDIC applies the seven statutory factors in accordance with a "Statement of Policy on Applications for Deposit Insurance." See 63 FR 44752 (August 20, 1998). The Statement of Policy discusses each of the factors at length; however, it does not address the threshold requirement that an applicant be "engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds."

The threshold requirement for obtaining federal deposit insurance is set forth in section 5 of the FDI Act. See 12 U.S.C. 1815(a)(1). The language used by section 5 ("engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds") also appears in section 8 and section 3 of the FDI Act. Under section 8, the FDIC is obligated to terminate the insured status of any depository institution "not engaged in the business of receiving deposits, other than trust funds * * *." 12 U.S.C. 1818(p). In section 3, the term "State bank" is defined in such a way as to include only those State banking institutions "engaged in the business of receiving deposits, other than trust funds * * * ." 12 U.S.C. 1813(a)(2). This definition is significant because the term "State bank" appears in a number of sections of the FDI Act.

For many years the FDIC has applied the statutory phrase on a case-by-case basis. In applying the phrase, the FDIC has approved applications from institutions that did not intend to accept non-trust deposits from the general public. The FDIC has thus found that the acceptance of non-trust deposits from the public at large is not a necessary component of being "engaged in the business of receiving [non-trust] deposits." The acceptance of non-trust deposits from a particular group (such as affiliates or trust customers) has been deemed by the FDIC to be sufficient.

Prior to 1991 the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) was responsible for determining whether new national banks would be "engaged in the business of receiving [non-trust] deposits." See 12 U.S.C. 1814(b) (1980). The OCC similarly never adopted an interpretation that would require new national banks to accept non-trust deposits from the general public.

The long-standing practices of the FDIC and the OCC have not been sufficient to remove all questions as to the proper interpretation of being "engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds." Questions have arisen from time to time about the application of the agencies' long-standing interpretation in the context of certain non-traditional depository institutions, such as credit card banks and trust companies.

The purpose of this General Counsel's opinion is to clarify the Legal Division's interpretation of being "engaged in the business of receiving deposits other than trust funds." Although the primary purpose of this opinion is to provide guidance to applicants for deposit insurance under section 5 of the FDI Act, the interpretation in this opinion also applies to section 8 (dealing with terminations) and section 3 (definition of "State bank").
