

GEORGE G. KAUFMAN

John F. Smith Professor of Finance and Economics
Director, Center for Financial and Policy Studies
School of Business Administration,
Loyola University Chicago

Professor Kaufman has taught at Loyola University since 1981. Before teaching at Loyola, he was a research fellow, economist and research officer at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago from 1959 to 1970 and has been a consultant to the Bank since 1981. He also served as Deputy to the Assistant Secretary for Economic Policy of the U.S. Treasury in 1976. Kaufman received his B.A. from Oberlin College (1954), M.A. from the University of Michigan (1955), and Ph.D. in economics from the University of Iowa (1962).

Professor Kaufman's teaching and research interests are in financial economics, institutions, markets and regulation and in the Federal Reserve and monetary policy. Most recently, he has been involved in developing ways of preventing bank crises and reforming deposit insurance in the U.S. and elsewhere. He has lectured widely on these subjects in the U.S. and abroad. He has published extensively in the American Economic Review, Journal of Finance, Journal of Financial and Quantitative Analysis and other major professional journals. Kaufman is also the author or editor of numerous books, including Money, the Financial System and the Economy (third edition, Houghton-Mifflin, 1981); The U.S. Financial System: Money, Markets, and Institutions (sixth edition, Prentice-Hall, 1995); Perspectives on Safe and Sound Banking: Past, Present, and Future (MIT Press, 1986) (co-author); Innovations in Bond Portfolio Management: Duration Analysis and Immunization (JAI Press, 1983) (co-editor); Preventing Bank Crises (FRB of Chicago and World Bank, October 1998) (co-editor); The Asian Financial Crisis (Kluwer, 1999) (co-editor); Global Financial Crises (Kluwer 2000) (co-editor); Asset Price Bubbles (MIT Press, 2003) (co-editor); Systemic Financial Crises (World Scientific, 2005) (co-editor); and the annual Research in Financial Services (JAI/Elsevier Press, 1989-2003) (editor).

Professor Kaufman has served as a consultant to numerous government agencies and private firms, including being a member of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Task Force on Reappraising Deposit Insurance (1983), the American Bankers Association Task Force on Bank Safety and Soundness (1985), the American Enterprise Institute Project on Financial Regulation (1987), and the Brookings Institution Task Force on Depository Institutions Reform (1989). He is co-chair of the Shadow Financial Regulatory Committee, a group of independent banking experts who analyze and comment on economic, legislative and regulatory forces affecting the financial services industry, and is executive director of Financial Economists Roundtable. He has frequently testified before Congress and other legislative and policy groups on numerous occasions.
