

22ND ANNUAL
BANK
RESEARCH
CONFERENCE

September 28–29, 2023

FDIC

CALL FOR POSTERS

The FDIC's Center for Financial Research invites submissions for the 22nd Annual Bank Research Conference to be held on September 28 and 29, 2023 in Arlington, Virginia.

The poster session is open to Ph.D. students in economics, finance, and related fields. The program committee invites theoretical and empirical papers on issues related to the performance and regulation of the financial sector, including:

- Deposit insurance
- Risk measurement and management
- Banking and rising interest rates
- Capital and liquidity requirements
- Bank scale and scope economies, industry competition, and market structure
- Fintech and trends in financial products, services, and technology
- Systemic risk and financial system stability
- Finance and the real economy
- Finance and inequality
- Finance and labor markets
- Interaction between regulation and the cost and availability of credit
- Climate-related financial risks
- Crypto assets

The poster session is intended to stimulate the exchange of ideas and introduce junior researchers to senior colleagues in the field. Poster proposals will be selected for presentation based on reviews by FDIC economists and the Organizing Committee.

Papers from selected posters may be invited for submission to the FDIC Center for Financial Research Working Paper Series. Expenses for food and lodging will be reimbursed for poster presenters.

Submissions should include a complete draft of the paper and authors should arrange for a letter of recommendation from the author's advisor to be sent to BankResearchConference@fdic.gov. Submissions may have senior coauthors, but the presenter must be a Ph.D. student. Papers must be received by April 18, 2023. Authors will be notified about the status of their submission in July 2023.

To submit a paper, please click here.

For additional information, please contact Jonathan Pogach at BankResearchConference@fdic.gov.