

Acknowledgments

This document draws heavily from Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation: The First Fifty Years, a 50th anniversary history published by the FDIC in 1984. In particular, this paper relies on sections of that book written by former FDIC Chairman William Isaac, William R. Watson, Director, Division of Research and Statistics (DRS) and Detta Voesar (DRS). Gratitude again is extended to all who contributed to the 1984 publication. Information also was derived from staff work produced in support of the assessment rate-setting process and related policy issues, including contributions by Christine Blair (DRS) and Frederick Carns, Division of Insurance. Editing and new material were provided by James McFadyen (DRS). Cathy Wright (DRS) lent her considerable secretarial skills, and Geri Bonebrake (DRS) provided assistance with graphics and production.
