SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Policy Objectives

The policy objective of this interim final rule is to bring the FDIC's FOIA regulations¹ into accord with the changes to the FOIA made by the FOIA Improvement Act,² the OPEN Government Act,³ and the OPEN FOIA Act.⁴

II. Background

This rule amends the FDIC's regulations under the FOIA to incorporate certain changes made to the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. 552, by the FOIA Improvement Act. Among other things, the FOIA Improvement Act requires agencies to provide a minimum of 90 days for requesters to file an administrative appeal. The FOIA Improvement Act also requires agency regulations to address dispute resolution procedures and to provide notification to requesters about the availability of dispute resolution services. The FOIA Improvement Act requires the FDIC to issue regulations which incorporate the changes made by the FOIA Improvement Act not later than 180 days after the date of its enactment (i.e., by December 27, 2016). This rule updates the FDIC's regulations in 12 CFR part 309 to reflect those statutory changes.

In addition, as explained below, this rule amends certain provisions to reflect changes brought about by the amendments to the FOIA in the OPEN Government Act and the OPEN FOIA Act. These amendments to the FOIA from 2007 and 2009 have been followed by the FDIC even though the agency's regulations had not been amended.

Finally, the rule corrects one instance of inaccurate contact information and adjusts the numbering and lettering of current provisions because of additions made to the regulations.

III. Description of the Rule

The following changes have been made to the FDIC's FOIA regulations:

Section 309.2 Definitions

Paragraph (e) of § 309.2 (Definitions) is revised to include the current definition for a record under the FOIA. Section 9 of the OPEN Government Act amended the definitions section of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. 552(f), by including within the definition of “record” any information “maintained for an agency by an entity under Government contract, for the purposes of records management.” This amendment made clear that records, in the possession of Government contractors for purposes of records management, are considered agency records for purposes of the FOIA. Through this change to the regulations, the FDIC adopts the statutory definition of “record.”

Section 309.4 Publicly Available Records

Paragraph (a)(2) of § 309.4 (Records available on the FDIC's World Wide Web page) is revised to replace outdated wording concerning the inspection of records that are required to be made available to the public. In the current version of the FDIC's regulations, the phrase “via computer telecommunications” is used. The FOIA Improvement Act changed this wording to “for inspection in an electronic format.” Through this change to the regulations, the FDIC adopts the language concerning public inspection of records in the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (a)(2)(i)(D) of § 309.4 (Records available on the FDIC's World Wide Web page) is revised to include

³ Public Law 110–175, 121 Stat. 2524 (2007).

⁴ Public Law 111–83, 123 Stat. 2142, 2184 (2009).

the requirement that the FDIC make available for public inspection in an electronic format any record that has been released and (i) that the FDIC determines has become or is likely to become the subject of subsequent requests for substantially the same records, or (ii) that has been requested three or more times. This requirement has been the practice of the FDIC for a number of years, is in accord with the current practice of the FDIC and is required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (b) of § 309.4 (Public Information Center) is revised to correct inaccurate contact information for the FDIC's Public Information Center. This revision to the regulations is required so that requesters have the correct contact information when inquiring about publicly available records.

Section 309.5 Procedures for Requesting Records

Paragraph (a)(6) of § 309.5 (Representative of the news media) is revised to include the current definition of "representative of the news media" under the FOIA. Section 3 of the OPEN Government Act amended 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4)(A)(ii) of the FOIA by expressly providing a definition of "representative of the news media." Through this change to the regulations, the FDIC adopts the definition of "representative of the news media" that is in the OPEN Government Act.

Paragraph (d)(1) of § 309.5 (Receipt of requests) is revised to specify that the FDIC will provide a requester with an individualized tracking number for any FOIA request that satisfies 12 CFR 309.5(b), no matter how long it will take to process the request. Section 7 of the OPEN Government Act amended 5 U.S.C. 552(a) by requiring agencies to assign an individualized tracking number for each request that will require more than ten days to process. This section codified existing requirements set forth in Executive Order 13,392. Providing tracking numbers for every FOIA request that satisfies § 309.5(b), including those that will take less than ten days to process, has been the practice of the FDIC for a number of years, is in accord with the current practice of the FDIC and adopts the language of the OPEN Government Act.

Paragraph (d)(4) of § 309.5 is revised to account for a change in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(h) (Dispute resolution). Previously, the paragraph covering procedures concerning appeals that is cross-referenced in this paragraph was § 309.5(h); it is now § 309.5(i). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (d)(6) of § 309.5 (Checking status of request) is added to notify requesters of the contact information for FDIC's FOIA Service Center (telephone number and Web site address), thereby enabling requesters to obtain certain information about the status of their request. Section 7 of the OPEN Government Act amended 5 U.S.C. 552(a) by requiring agencies to establish a telephone number or a Web site to allow requesters to inquire about the status of their request, obtain the date an agency originally received their request, and obtain an estimated date for the completion of the agency's processing of their request. This section of the OPEN Government Act codified existing requirements set forth in Executive Order 13,392. The FDIC has a FOIA Service Center that is accessible via the internet and telephone and, through either method, requesters are provided with the date of the FDIC's receipt of their request and the estimated date on which the FDIC will complete its processing of their request. The FDIC has made these services and information available to requesters for a number of years. The addition of this notification provision to the regulations is in accord with the FDIC's current practice and adopts the language in the OPEN Government Act.

Paragraph (d)(7) of § 309.5 (Notification) is revised in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(d)(6) (Checking status of request). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(d)(6) (Notification); it is now § 309.5(d)(7) (Notification). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (d)(8) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is revised in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(d)(6) (Checking status of request). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(d)(7); it is now § 309.5(d)(8). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (d)(8)(iii) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is added to require the FDIC to notify requesters, in its response to their request, of their right to seek assistance from the FDIC's FOIA Public Liaison, if the FDIC determines such request satisfies 12 CFR 309.5(b). Section 2 of the FOIA Improvement Act added 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(6)(A)(i)(II), which requires agencies to offer the services of their FOIA Public Liaison when issuing their determinations of requests. The addition of this notification provision to the regulations is in accord with the FDIC's current practice and is required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (d)(8)(iv) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is revised in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(d)(8)(iii) (Checking status of request). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(d)(8)(iii); it is now § 309.5(d)(8)(iv). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (d)(8)(iv)(C) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is revised to remove an "and" because of the addition of § 309.5(d)(8)(iv)(E). This removal is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (d)(8)(iv)(D) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is revised to provide for notification to the requester that the deadline to file an administrative appeal is extended to 90 days, in conformity with the 90-day time period established by the FOIA Improvement Act. Section 2 of the FOIA Improvement Act amended 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(6)(A)(i) by changing the time period for an appeal of adverse determinations, from 30 days to 90 days. This paragraph is also revised to add an "and" because of the addition of § 309.5(d)(8)(iv)(E). These changes are required by the FOIA Improvement Act and for the regulation to remain organized.

Paragraph (d)(8)(iv)(E) of § 309.5 (Response to request) is added to include a requirement that the FDIC notify requesters, in response to an adverse determination of a request that satisfies § 309.5(b), of their right to seek assistance from the FDIC's FOIA Public Liaison and/or the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) at the National Archives and Records Administration. Section 2 of the FOIA Improvement Act added 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(6)(A)(i)(III), which requires that when agencies make adverse determinations on requests, they must offer the services of their FOIA Public Liaison and/or OGIS. The addition of this provision concerning notification to the regulations is required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (f)(1)(x) of § 309.5 is revised to account for a change in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(h) (Dispute resolution). Previously, the paragraph referring to procedures concerning appeals that is cross-referenced in this paragraph was § 309.5(h); it is now § 309.5(i). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (g)(3)(i) of § 309.5 (Exempt information) is revised in numbering and by adding an “and” because of the addition of § 309.5(g)(3)(ii). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(d)(8)(iii); it is now § 309.5(d)(8)(iv). This adjustment to numbering and the addition of an “and” is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (g)(3)(ii) of § 309.5 (Exempt information) is added to include a requirement codified in the OPEN FOIA Act that statutes enacted after the date of the enactment of the OPEN FOIA Act must specifically cite to Exemption 3 of the FOIA in order to qualify under Exemption 3. The OPEN FOIA Act was enacted on October 28, 2009, and so this amendment impacts statutes enacted after that date. In order for any statute enacted after that date to qualify as an Exemption 3 statute, it must satisfy one of the traditional requirements, i.e., it must “require that the matters be withheld from the public in such a manner as to leave no discretion on the issue” or it must “establish particular criteria for withholding or refer to particular types of matters to be withheld;” and, the statute enacted after October 28, 2009, must also specifically cite to Exemption 3. Through this change to the regulations, the FDIC is bringing the language concerning withholdings made pursuant to Exemption 3 into accord with the OPEN FOIA Act.

Paragraph (h) of § 309.5 (Dispute resolution) is added to include procedures for engaging in dispute resolution through the FOIA Public Liaison and OGIS. Section 3 of the FOIA Improvement Act requires agencies to amend their regulations to include procedures for engaging in dispute resolution through the FOIA Public Liaison and OGIS. The FDIC has pointed requesters to its FOIA Service Center at <http://www.fdic.gov>, which contains details about the procedures for contacting these entities in order to engage in dispute resolution. The addition of these procedures to the FDIC’s regulations is required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (i) of § 309.5 (Appeals) is revised in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(h) (Dispute resolution). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(h); it is now § 309.5(i). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

Paragraph (i)(2) of § 309.5 (Appeals) is revised to extend the time to file an administrative appeal to 90 days, in conformity with the 90-day time period established by the FOIA Improvement

Act. Section 2 of the FOIA Improvement Act amended 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(6)(A)(i), changing the time period for appeal of adverse determinations from 30 days to 90 days. This change to the regulations is required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

Paragraph (j) of § 309.5 (Records of another agency) is revised in numbering because of the addition of § 309.5(h) (Dispute resolution). Previously this paragraph was § 309.5(i); it is now § 309.5(j). This adjustment to numbering is necessary to maintain the organizational integrity of the regulations.

IV. Expected Effects of the Rule

The FDIC has analyzed the expected effects of the interim final rule and estimates them to be relatively small. The rule makes two primary changes to the existing regulations: Extending the deadline for requesters to file an appeal, and establishing procedures for dispute resolution and requiring notice to requesters about the availability of dispute resolution services. These changes help support the policy objective of the FOIA, which is to provide public access to government information.

The provision in the interim final rule that extends the time period for which an appeal will be considered will likely result in a small increase in administrative costs associated with FOIA requests, but that may be offset by a decrease in lawsuits brought since requesters will now have a larger window for seeking administrative review of an adverse request determination. In the past ten fiscal years, the FDIC has received 238 appeals from FOIA requesters, an average of 24 appeals per fiscal year. The extension of the appeal time period from 30 business days to 90 calendar days will likely result in a general increase in number of appeals, given the larger window for filing an appeal. A general increase in the number of appeals will likely increase administrative costs for the FDIC. Any potential increase in administrative costs as a result of the extension of the appeal period rule is difficult to estimate given that costs will depend upon both the volume of requests received and the extent to which the requests may be subject, in whole or in part, to denial. However, the extension of the appeal period will benefit the public by expanding the deadline for requesters to file an administrative appeal of adverse determinations made by the FDIC.

The establishment of a dispute resolution process also supports public access to government information while likely posing a small increase in administrative costs for the FDIC and/or the OGIS. The establishment of a dispute resolutions process, in addition to the FDIC appeal process, will support public access to government records by providing requesters with an additional mechanism for the review of adverse determinations, in the event of a dispute. Any potential increase in administrative costs as a result of the establishment of a dispute resolution process by the interim final rule is difficult to estimate, given the unpredictable elements noted above.

The interim final rule also makes changes to the FDIC’s FOIA regulations to reflect FDIC FOIA practices initially prompted by the OPEN Government Act and the OPEN FOIA Act. Most of the changes to the FDIC FOIA regulations are procedural and either codify current practice or make benign changes to the FOIA regulations that are unlikely to pose any costs or benefits for the Public.

In conclusion, there is potential for a small increase in administrative costs for the FDIC posed by the revisions, but the policy objective of public access to government information continues to be supported and would in fact be enhanced—as required by the FOIA Improvement Act.

V. Alternatives Considered

The changes in the interim final rule are mandated by the FOIA Improvement Act and are in accord with the OPEN Government Act and the OPEN FOIA Act. Under the FOIA Improvement Act, the FDIC has no discretion to make or consider alternative specifications to the provisions in the interim final rule. The other technical changes to 12 CFR part 309 are minor and designed to improve the transparency and readability of the CFR, and therefore FDIC staff did not actively consider alternative approaches to these changes.

VI. Request for Comment

Pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (the “APA”), at 5 U.S.C. 553(b), notice and comment are not required prior to the issuance of a final rule if an agency, for good cause, finds that “notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.” As discussed above, the FOIA Improvement Act requires the FDIC to issue regulations which incorporate the changes made by the FOIA Improvement Act not later than 180 days after the date of its enactment (i.e., by December 27, 2016). Because the statutory changes under the FOIA Improvement Act were effective immediately and due to the statutory deadline imposed for rulemaking, the FDIC has concluded that publishing notice and taking comment before issuing a final rule would be impracticable. In addition, since these changes merely bring the regulations into alignment with the provisions contained in the FOIA Improvement Act, the OPEN Government Act, and the OPEN FOIA Act, and improve the rule's accuracy and organization, publishing prior notice would be unnecessary. Therefore, the FDIC finds good cause exists to publish this rule as final without prior notice and comment and with an effective date as of the date of its publication in the Federal Register to allow the public to benefit immediately. Nevertheless, the FDIC welcomes public comments from any interested person on any aspect of the changes made by this interim final rule. Please refer to the ADDRESSES section above. The FDIC will carefully consider all public comments, if any, in any further development of this rule.

VII. Regulatory Analysis

Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act

Section 302 of the Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act⁵ generally requires that regulations prescribed by federal banking agencies which impose additional reporting, disclosures, or other new requirements on insured depository institutions take effect on the first day of a calendar quarter unless the regulation is required to take effect on another date pursuant to another act of Congress or the agency determines for good cause that the regulation should become effective on an earlier date. This interim final rule makes revisions in the FDIC's FOIA regulations, because these changes are merely bringing the regulations into alignment with the provisions contained in the FOIA Improvement Act, the OPEN Government Act, and the OPEN FOIA Act, as well as for purposes of accuracy and organization. It does not impose any new or additional reporting, disclosures, or other requirements on insured depository institutions. Additionally, as previously noted, the FOIA Improvement Act requires the FDIC to issue regulations which incorporate the changes made by the FOIA Improvement Act not later than 180 days after the date of its enactment (i.e., by December 27, 2016). Accordingly, this interim final rule will be effective upon publication.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA)⁶ applies only to rules for which an agency publishes a general notice of proposed rulemaking pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(b). As discussed above, consistent with section 553(b)(B) of the APA, the FDIC has determined for good cause that general notice and opportunity for public comment is not necessary. Accordingly, the RFA's requirements relating to initial and final regulatory flexibility analysis do not apply. Nonetheless, the FDIC observes that because this interim final rule only amends the FDIC's regulations under the FOIA to incorporate certain changes made by the FOIA Improvement Act, the OPEN Government Act, and the OPEN FOIA Act, and for purposes of accuracy and organization, it should not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The FDIC requests comment on these conclusions.

The Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999: Assessment of Federal Regulations and Policies on Families

The FDIC determined that this interim final rule will not affect family wellbeing within the meaning of section 654 of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999.⁷

Paperwork Reduction Act

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995⁸ states that no agency may conduct or sponsor, nor is the respondent required to respond to, an information collection unless it displays a currently valid Office of Management and Budget (OMB) control number. The FDIC has determined that this interim final rule does not create any new, or revise any existing, collections of information under the Paperwork Reduction Act. Consequently, no information collection request will be submitted to the OMB for review. The FDIC invites comment on its PRA determination.

Plain Language Act

Section 722 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act requires the FDIC to use plain language in all proposed and final rules published after January 1, 2000.⁹ The FDIC invites comment on how to make this rule easier to understand. For example:

- Has the FDIC organized the material to suit your needs? If not, how could the FDIC present the rule more clearly?
- Are the requirements in the rule clearly stated? If not, how could the rule be more clearly stated?
- Does the rule contain technical language or jargon that is not clear? If so, which language requires clarification?
- Would a different format (grouping and order of sections, use of headings, paragraphing) make the rule easier to understand? If so, what changes would achieve that?
- Is this section format adequate? If not, which of the sections should be changed and how?
- What other changes can the FDIC incorporate to make the rule easier to understand?

The revisions and additions read as follows:

§ 309.5 Procedures for requesting records.

(a) * * *

(6) Representative of the news media means any person or entity that gathers information of potential interest to a segment of the public, uses its editorial skills to turn the raw materials into a distinct work, and distributes that work to an audience. The term news means information that is about current events or that would be of current interest to the public. Examples of news-media entities are television or radio stations broadcasting to the public at large and publishers of periodicals (but only if such entities qualify as disseminators of news) who make their products available for purchase by or subscription by or free distribution to the general public. These examples are not all-inclusive. Moreover, as methods of news delivery evolve (for example, the adoption of the electronic dissemination of newspapers through telecommunications services), such alternative media will be considered to be news-media entities. A freelance journalist will be regarded as working for a news-media entity if the journalist can demonstrate a solid basis for expecting publication through that entity, whether or not the journalist is actually employed by that entity. A publication contract would present a solid basis for such an expectation; the FDIC may also consider the past publication record of the requester in making this determination.

(d) * * *

(1) Receipt of requests. Upon receipt of a request that satisfies paragraph (b) of this section, the FOIA/PA Group will acknowledge receipt of the request in writing to the requester and provide the requester with an individualized tracking number for the request. The date of receipt for such request, including one that is addressed incorrectly or that is referred by another agency, is the date the FOIA/PA Group actually receives the request.

* * * * *

(4) A requester seeking expedited processing will be notified whether expedited processing has been granted within ten (10) working days of the receipt of the request. If the request for expedited processing is denied, the requester may file an appeal pursuant to the procedures set forth in paragraph (i) of this section, and the FDIC shall respond to the appeal within ten (10) working days after receipt of the appeal.

* * * * *

(6) Checking status of request. A requester may check on the status of a request using the tracking number assigned to the request to obtain information about the request including the date on which the FDIC originally received the request and an estimated date on which the FDIC will complete action on the request. The status of a request may be obtained:

(i) Online at the FDIC's FOIA Service Center, at <http://www.fdic.gov>, if the request was submitted electronically using the FDIC's online FOIA request form; or

RIN 2120-AA64

Airworthiness Directives; Airbus Airplanes

AGENCY: Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), Department of Transportation (DOT).

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: We are superseding Airworthiness Directive (AD) 2013-25-08 for all Airbus Model A330-200, -200 Freighter, and -300 series airplanes; and Model A340-200 and -300 series airplanes. AD 2013-25-08 required a repetitive inspection program on certain check valves in the hydraulic systems that includes, among other things, inspections for lock wire presence and integrity, traces of seepage or black deposits, proper torque, alignment of the check valve and manifold, installation of new lock wire, and corrective actions if needed. This new AD removes airplanes from the applicability, and requires modifying the green, blue, and yellow high pressure hydraulic manifolds by replacing certain check valves with improved check valves, which terminates the repetitive inspections required by this AD. This AD was prompted by multiple reports of hydraulic line check valves loosening. We are issuing this AD to address the unsafe condition on these products.

DATES: This AD is effective December 27, 2016.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Discussion

We issued a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) to amend 14 CFR part 39 to supersede AD 2013-25-08, Amendment 39-17704 (78 FR 78694, December 27, 2013) (“AD 2013-25-08”). AD 2013-25-08 applied to all Airbus Model A330-200, -200 Freighter, and -300 series airplanes; and Model A340-200 and -300 series airplanes. The NPRM published in the Federal Register on February 25, 2016 (81 FR 9374) (“the NPRM”). The NPRM was prompted by multiple reports of hydraulic line check valves loosening. The NPRM proposed to continue to require a repetitive inspection program on certain check valves in the hydraulic systems that includes, among other things, inspections for lock wire presence and integrity, traces of seepage or black deposits, proper torque, alignment of the check valve and manifold, installation of new lock wire, and corrective actions if needed. The NPRM also proposed to add airplanes to the applicability, and require modifying the green, blue, and yellow high pressure hydraulic manifolds by replacing certain check valves with improved check valves, which would terminate the repetitive inspections required by the proposed AD. We are issuing this AD to detect and correct hydraulic check valve loosening; loosened valves could result in hydraulic leaks, possibly leading to the loss of all three hydraulic systems and consequent loss of control of the airplane.

The European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA), which is the Technical Agent for the Member States of the European Union, has issued EASA Airworthiness Directive 2015-0009, dated January 16, 2015 (referred to after this as the Mandatory Continuing Airworthiness Information, or “the MCAI”), to correct an unsafe condition. The MCAI states:

An A330 operator experienced a Yellow hydraulic circuit low level due to a loose check valve, Part Number (P/N) CAR401. During the inspection on the other two hydraulic systems, the other three check valves P/N CAR401 were also found to be loose with their lock wire broken in two instances. Airbus A340 aeroplanes are also equipped with P/N CAR401 high pressure manifold check valves.

Additional cases of P/N CAR401 check valve loosening have been reported on aeroplanes having accumulated more than 1,000 flight cycles (FC). The check valve fitted on the Yellow hydraulic system is more
