Subject: Comment - Industrial Loan Companies and Industrial Banks

Dear FDIC,

I am writing once again to ask you to completely reject Wal-Mart's application to open a bank as an Industrial Loan Corporation. My reasons are the same as before -- I believe that Wal-Mart's bullying business practices and poor reputation for employee treatment would spread to the banking industry should the application be approved. As I recall, Wal-Mart was also found to have misrepresented itself on the application when it was last being considered, which alone should indicate that the corporation cannot be trusted with a business as influential as a bank.

Please make the right decision for the majority of Americans and reject this application.

Ben Thomas
