RE: Community Reinvestment Act Proposed Rulemaking [87 FR 33884]

OCC: 12 CFR Part 25; Docket ID OCC-2022-0002; RIN 1557-AF15
Federal Reserve: 12 CFR Part 228; Regulation BB Docket No. R-1769; RIN 7100-AG29
FDIC: 12 CFR Part 345; RIN 3064-AF81

Enclosed are 10,364 petition signatures in support of strengthening the draft rule proposed by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (collectively “the agencies”) for the Community Reinvestment Act of 1977 (CRA). The signatories believe the rule must address how climate change challenges access to credit and, in turn, further exacerbates racial and economic inequality. The petition signatures were gathered through an online petition organized by Americans for Financial Reform and Public Citizen.

The petitioners urge the agencies to strengthen the CRA regulations to ensure that those most vulnerable to the impacts of climate change can have access to necessary, fair, and affordable capital and services to meet their financial needs.

Please note that the full names of the petition signers have been redacted to protect individuals’ privacy. Data available upon request.

The full petition text reads as follows:

To the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“the agencies”):

The homeownership gap between Black and white Americans is now larger than it was fifty years ago and will only continue to grow if immediate action is not taken.

That’s why we’re encouraged by the recent proposal from the agencies to amend the regulations implementing the Community Reinvestment Act of 1977 (CRA), including updates to how and which CRA activities qualify for consideration, and how they are evaluated and inform bank ratings.

Updating the CRA regulations to prioritize communities of color in addition to holding banks accountable for climate disaster and environmental harms will help ensure that the most vulnerable communities have the tools they need to be kept safe from the worsening climate crisis.

Redlining prevented investments in areas that were occupied primarily by Black communities and communities of color – areas that were already more susceptible to environmental hazards, such as flooding. As these communities were unable to secure the financing they needed for home repair, green spaces, drainage systems, and other measures needed to respond to environmental and climate-induced harms, they suffered health and financial challenges.

The consequences of our legacy of environmental racism and redlining are clear. Today, many Black Americans live in areas that are the most vulnerable to climate extremes and environmental hazards. For example, in two-thirds of states minority neighborhoods shoulder more undisclosed flood risk than the state average. And urban heat islands tend to correlate with areas of cities that have been historically redlined and not invested in. Residents of formerly redlined neighborhoods are at increased risk of health issues like preterm birth, cancer, tuberculosis, and maternal depression.

Redlining has had and continues to have known and direct financial harm on Black people and communities of color. We strongly encourage regulators to explicitly use race as a metric in order to ensure that historically and current redlined communities receive improved access to credit and services, including investments in community climate resilience.

Additional recommendations that we encourage regulators to consider include:

- Expand the list of climate-related eligible activities under the CRA to include activities such as electrification and water efficiency measures for residential homes, including multifamily properties.
- Encourage banks to increase community engagement and relationship building with climate and environmental justice organizations, including through the use of Community Benefits Agreements (CBAs).
- Consider impacts from bank activities that further contribute to climate change and disproportionately impair access to credit for Black communities.

We urge the agencies to strengthen the proposal to better ensure that the communities most impacted by redlining and environmental injustice receive the intended benefits of the CRA, and for the agencies to further consider climate-related investment opportunities for communities.

The petition shows that the public firmly supports the agencies updating CRA rules to better address the challenges of communities of color as they are most likely to be impacted by the ongoing climate crisis.

We thank the agencies for issuing this proposal, and urge you to take these recommendations into consideration.

Sincerely,

Americans for Financial Reform
Public Citizen
